WHERE THEY PLAY MONDAY.
Richmond at Lynchburg.
Roanoke at Norfolk.
Petersburg at Danville.

O, it was a slaughter. It started in the first inning and didn't stop until the red sun had laid the setting upon the milk white clouds and the dairy maids had all gone home. In fact, there was nothing to suggest milk. The lone Portsmouth rooster said so, and what the L. P. R. says is true. Incidentally, the L. P. R. has switched his attention to Petersburg of late and yells just as lustily for hits and outs as he used to do when Portsmouth was a reality.

It started, as the best chroniclers say, in the first inning. Petersburg was on the unholy off and Richmond was more than to the good. In fact, Richmond and the Colts that Lawlor has gotten together did all that was ever expected of them, and then put a few extra frills on the matter just to show that they were still living. Just as was about to be divulged in the first paragraph, it started in the first inning. Burke went out on a scratch. Then things began to happen, and the way it happened made the Petersburg roosters, who were present in great numbers, weep with pain. It was awful. The way the Colts cantered across the plate was a thing that the fans had expected, and those who were not fans hoped that they might die.

Baker Scores.
Baker opened the ball with a smart drive to Kirkpatrick, and Kirkpatrick failed to connect. Error for Kirk. Then Shaw had the temerity to swing on one that looked good, and before the Petersburg roosters, who, as has been said before, were there in great numbers, could collect themselves, Shaw was on second base and Baker was safe in the haven that spells home.

Then more things began to happen. Not content with the honor and glory of a double-bagger by Shaw, Wallace undertook to salivate the ball, and his undertaking was successful from every point of view. In fact, Shaw scored. Then Titman got into the game with a heavy swing to center field, and we hate to say it, Petersburg, Wallace scored.

That, of course, was all to that first inning, but it was indicative, and indicative is one of the best words in the dictionary when describing the game. The Colts were indicative all the way through, and the way they showed the Petersburgers how to hit a pitcher was really pathetic after the first nine hits.

Mr. Welsher, as nice a young man as has been seen in Richmond in years, undertook to pitch a winning game for Petersburg, but the undertaking was just a wee bit too strong for him. In fact, he looked more of a puffed water bug than anything else before the Colts had attended to his case. In spite of his nervous spurs he seemed to be just a little to the bad.

Revelle Takes Two Hits.
Even after the first inning the Colts were not satisfied. They started to rough-house matters in the fourth, and succeeded in making Welsher's stock take a downward plunge. Then it was that Dobson received a hip pass and waited himself to the home plate on a stinging hit that Revelle managed to pull out. In fact, Revelle was among those who stood highest in the batting list, and pulled down two clean hits out of four times at the bat.

In the "lucky seventh" the Colts began to prance again. It wasn't necessary, but the Colts wanted to prance, and prance they would. Revelle opened the ball with a hit that Toner could no more handle than he could a baby hippopotamus. Revelle was then sacrificed to second by Burke, and before anything could be done he had come home on Baker's clutch to left field.

Baker was eased about the bags by scratches, and such until Wallace came up, and then that Dobson received a hip pass and waited himself to the home plate on a stinging hit that Revelle managed to pull out. In fact, Revelle was among those who stood highest in the batting list, and pulled down two clean hits out of four times at the bat.

LYNCHBURG TENNIS TEAM TO PLAY HERE

Frank J. Hall and Three Other Players to Contest for Cup in September.

Because Frank J. Hall of Lynchburg, made such an excellent showing in the Dominion tournament held in Richmond on a tennis team, including Mr. Hall, has been invited by the Country Club of Virginia to play a team representing the Country Club. The tournament will probably be held in the early part of September.

Mr. Hall played against some of the best players in this section of the country, and defeated many of the Richmond players who went against him. He finally was downed by R. H. Palmer, of New Jersey, who won the Hermitage Challenge cup and the tournament.

The team from the Lynchburg clubs has not been picked yet, and will not be picked probably until a series of elimination matches has been played. The team, however, will represent the best players in the city of Lynchburg, and will be well worthy of consideration.

The Country Club of Virginia will have a series of elimination matches for the teams to meet the Lynchburg team is picked. There are a number of players who are capable of meeting the Lynchburg team, and it will be a question of the best meeting the best.

Although every effort is being made to put the Country Club of Virginia courts in proper shape for play, it is probable that the tournament will be played on the Hermitage courts. The Hermitage courts are in the best possible condition now, and it does not seem possible to get the Country Club of Virginia's courts ready in time.

PITCHERS' BATTLE WON BY NORFOLK

Tars Play Snappy Game and Defeat Shoemakers Without Trouble.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Norfolk, Va., July 30.—Playing snappy and gingerly ball, and bunched up when needed, while Vance twirled in big league form, the Tars had no trouble this afternoon in defeating the Shoemakers by the score of 3 to 1. It was a pitchers' battle between Vance and Sexton. From the standpoint of hits, Sexton had the better of the contest, but when it comes to holding out and cleverness in the pinches, Vance had him to the good. The Shoemakers were in the line of their opponents after the second inning.

The Shoemakers got busy in the second. B. Smith hit the trademark and perched on second when the Tars took up at the left field fence. Morrison sent an easy one up to Reggy. Woolums sent one to left that Johnson failed to get off his shoe strings. It went for two bases, and B. Smith raced home. Sexton and Howdell were easy on grounders.

With one out in the sixth, the Tars got a rally in motion. Vance opening with a crack past third that was good for two sacks. Busch sent a fast grounder to right that Levy got past him. Vance scoring and Busch landing on third. Bonner laid one down for the squeeze, and Busch scored on the put-out. Murdock fouled out to the catcher.

In the ninth Reggy drew a free pass, then fired the game. Chandler grounded to pitcher, going out, but advancing Reggy. Vance fanned. Busch tripled to the clubhouse and scored Reggy.

LIFE SACRIFICED TO HIGH SPEED

Auto Driver in Fatal Accident on Atlanta Speedway.

Atlanta, Ga., July 30.—Few in the big crowd which witnessed to-day's automobile races at the Speedway here knew that two hours before the meet began a life had been sacrificed to high speed on the track. As the pistol cracked for the first event, the body of T. B. Dial, of Atlanta, was quickly carried from the grounds. Dial was a mechanic, and his car, a Marion, while on a practice spin, became unmanageable, slipping up over 100 feet from the inside fence on the first turn of the track, and then turning two complete somersaults. The car landed forty feet from the track, and midway between the machine and the speedway was found the unconscious mechanic, one side of his head crushed. No one was near enough to see exactly how he met death. His body lay twelve minutes after the accident.

The races were run without an accident, but amateur and professional drivers participating. The program called for seven events, but darkness out them off at eleven. All the entrants were local cars.

HOW THE CUBS SPOIL THE SACRIFICE FLY STUNT

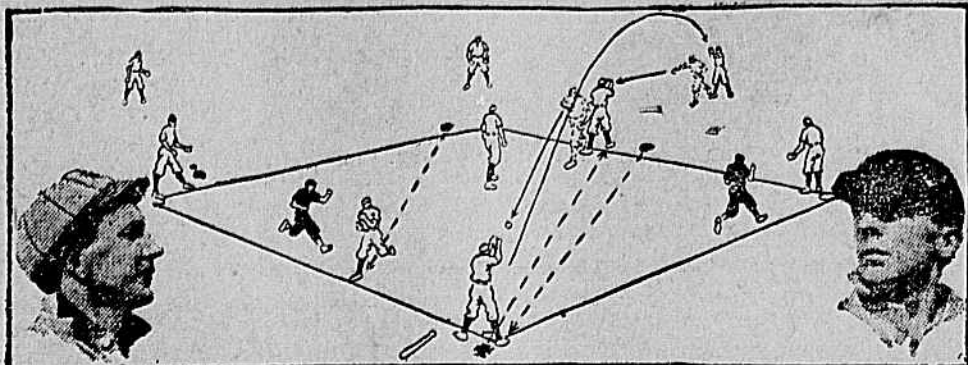

Diagram Shows How Kling, Evers and Tinker Work the Play. Inset Pictures of Kling and Tinker.

The Chicago Cubs have devised a new way to beat the sacrifice fly, and judging by the way it has worked in the few times the Cubs directly interested have tried it, the new stunt spells more trouble for the batter. Johnny Kling, Johnny Evers and Joe Tinker are the men who are credited with the new plan to kill off the sacrifice fly. They have a good-sized majority of the real brainy stuff which has made the Cubs the great machine they are.

The trick is worked like this: With a runner on the third corner the batter put a long fly to the outfield. Kling breaks away from the plate with the batter and beats it for the edge of the diamond, fronting whatever part of the field the ball has been hit into. Evers breaks directly for the plate, while Tinker, taking more than his sprint so as to cross the line between third base and home plate in time to stop up the runner, who starts the moment the ball touches the outfielder's hands.

Instead of shooting the ball home and taking his chances on the throw being wild, the outfielder relays it to Kling, known as the most accurate thrower the game has, who in turn whips it home to Evers covering the plate. Tinker, after performing his part of the play, which is to slow the runner coming home by crossing directly in front of him, but not blocking him, backs up Evers on the throw.

It sounds difficult, but the Cubs' great trio have tried it out and have made good, and the play mostly depends on the accuracy of the great Kling's salary arm.

HERMITAGE IS GROWING YET

Tennis Has Been Developed as It Never Has Been in Richmond Before.

GOLFERS THERE ALSO

To Have Three More Tennis Courts—Club Will Be One of Best Fitted in South.

"Sport for sports' sake" has ever been recognized as the only "healthy slogan" for athletics. And this is no byword in the spacious, open-air theatre of the Hermitage Golf Club. Organized and incorporated in 1900, and with a membership of almost 500, this historic place has no dark doings for the future. For ten years it has been a member of the Middle Atlantic and Southern Golf Association.

Barly fifteen years ago the ancient game of golf and the brainy, strenuous game of tennis were almost at a standstill in this city. Scarcely a tournament was held, and the entries were few and the defaults many. When this club was organized, with its nine-hole golf course and beautiful tennis courts, enthusiasts, eager for the zest of exercise, began to flock every afternoon, some to the call of the green and others to the white-washed lines. Players felt that their game had taken life again. The club became a rendezvous for the women, and Gwendoline, at first a poor, neglected tennis aspirant, with sympathetic treatment, developed through patient and determined assistance to the point where she was a member contender for honors. In dealing with those individual women players who have displayed the most ability, Miss "Connie" Evans, now Mrs. Sullivan, would be considered first. Her excellence has been of inestimable assistance to the tennis public to require any remarks.

Fred Pollard, the Richmond crack, is undoubtedly the all-around best player in the city. Erskine Buford, Donald Blair, John Coke and others of the club have been of inestimable assistance to the golfers. Otis George, who came here from Hot Springs, Va., is a player of no mean ability. He has the record for the course, in and out, of seventy-one, thereby defeating "Colonel" Bogey by nine strokes. He also lowered the record of the difficult Lakeside course from thirty-four to thirty-three last spring. William Palmer, the premier golfer of the city, has stroked the course in a neat seventy-two. Thomas Cernick, whose brother was a member of the team, is a rising young player. Neither must Charles Davenport be passed by. Although along in years, he is the liveliest of the bunch. He is called the "Duke" and the "Little Giant," and he deserves the title. Last, but not least, is the pioneer, Dr. S. B. Moon. Three years back, the story says, the doctor was hitting the tiny sphere. He was upon the ninth green when an old woman, apparently very much excited, ran up to him. "Mr. Moon," she exclaimed, "a mad dog has bitten that hoss yonder, and you had better take care about your own hoss!" Moon ran as fast as his legs could, by nine strokes, and leaped into a buggy. The rabid horse was out for blood. With the club porch crowded with pretty women, the doctor raced for his life, a nose ahead of the infuriated animal. "Puss" Elyson made a vain attempt to club the beast. The doctor escaped. The animal, trembling in every limb, dropped dead. His escape from death was miraculous.

Charles R. Guy is president, A. P. Wilmer vice-president and John B. Orin gain secretary and treasurer. James Mullen, Donald Blair and Geddes Winston form the tennis committee. Dr. S. B. Moon is chairman of the golf committee. Otis George, the professional, is in charge of the Country Club, there about the middle of August. It was stated on authority by one of the most influential members yesterday that there was some possibility that the club would become extinct in a few years by interference from the railroad. In fact, it is very remote, and he said that the club would undoubtedly be in existence ten years from now.

One of the great features of the Hermitage is its accessibility; business men being able to do their clothes and be ready for recreation in a short while after leaving their offices. In the singles for women, Miss Leila White beat Miss Katharine Ricks by default. The match between Geddes Winston and Evans, finished in the final of the consolation was called off until next week by mutual agreement. The next tennis tournament will be held in September, when the club championship will be played.

FOOTBALL HERO IS NOT ARRESTED

Hunter Carpenter in Brown's Station, New York, Where He Has Dam Contract.

STORY PROMPTLY DENIED

Reported as Arrested for Impersonating Army Officer in Los Angeles.

The story which appeared in afternoon papers yesterday, stating that Hunter Carpenter, one time halfback on the All-Southern football team, and one of the greatest, if not the greatest, football player that the South has produced, was arrested in Los Angeles on the charge of impersonating an army officer, is indignantly denied by his friends. Hunter Carpenter is now in a hospital in New York City, where he and his father are working on a portion of the contract in the building of the Ashokan Dam for the water supply of Greater New York.

In the first place, the news story sent from Los Angeles states that Hunter Carpenter was arrested. Hunter Carpenter, the star football player, who was one of the mainstays of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute team in 1901, 1902 and 1903, and who played on the University of North Carolina team in 1904, is named Claus Hunter Carpenter.

Since he left the field of sports, Hunter Carpenter has been associated with his father, who is a contractor. The firm received contract for a portion of the work on the Ashokan Dam, which will ultimately supply the city of New York with water, and for two years Hunter Carpenter has been in New York.

Yesterday afternoon Edward Keegan, a Chicago star, who is a professional engineer, received the following telegram: "Ed Keegan, Richmond, Va.: 'Can you send Will to run dinky engine. Concrete work. If so send him and wire me.'

The telegram shows conclusively that Hunter Carpenter is still putting through his contract on the Ashokan Dam, and that he is not in Los Angeles, as was reported. The news story yesterday stated that Hunter Carpenter was arrested on the charge of impersonating an army officer, stationed at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, he had credited him.

"Can you send Will to run dinky engine. Concrete work. If so send him and wire me."

A dispatch from Roanoke last night confirmed the fact that the former football star, who is now in New York City, was not in Los Angeles, as was suggested that some one has been using his name in an unauthorized manner. The dispatch says: "The Roanoke player's initials are 'C. H.' and he was in New York City yesterday, according to a letter received here to-day from him. Carpenter is a member of the railroad contracting firm of Carpenter & Boxley, of Roanoke and Clifton Forge, Va., which he took over from his father. The man under arrest at Los Angeles has evidently impersonated two men instead of one."

JULY HANDICAP TOURNAMENT OVER

J. W. Atkinson Wins Out Hands Down in the First Division Over George Keesee.

FINE PLAYING IS SEEN

Round Robin Tournament Is Being Planned for August.

The very interesting golf tournament at the Country Club of Virginia, which has been running through July, ended yesterday with the following winners:
First division—J. W. Atkinson, Jr. beat G. H. Keesee, six up and five to play.
Second division—D. C. Griffith beat E. R. Guy, one up.
Third division—F. P. Smith beat E. C. Mayo, two up.

First division consolation—E. T. Orin beat G. Harrison, default.
Second division consolation—E. A. Palmer beat W. D. Duke, three up.
Third division consolation—S. Fleming beat L. O. Bullock, four up and two to play.

Every winner has reached the goal by hard and consistent play, and should feel that he has accomplished something more than merely winning the prize.

The course continues to improve, better golf is being shown every day, and it is expected when the open tournament is held in the fall that local players will be able to hold their own with the experts from other sections, or at any rate show them we are not "duffers."

For the convenience for those desiring to take up this fascinating game, the club has a professional, Mr. Beck, at who is always on hand for instruction. A large stock of clubs and accessories are also carried.

Round Robin Tournament

Qualification August 1 to 6. Players can drop in as many eighteen holes attested cards as they please during that week. Those qualifying will be divided into divisions of eight and the Round Robin will consist of nine games to be played during the four weeks, commencing August 8 and ending September 3. Each player that qualifies is expected to play at least seven match games during that period with others in his division, or one match game with every other player in his division. The winner in each division will be determined by those winning the greater number of these match games. The matches can be arranged at the convenience of the players. Every contestant will make an effort to meet every other man in his division.

This tournament is an innovation in this section. It has proven most interesting in other places and furnishes an opportunity for a player to test his ability against a large number of others. No handicaps are to be used in either the qualification rounds or in the matches, every player of each division playing on the same basis.

The committee suggests that as many cards be handed in as possible during the early part of the week, for if players defer their qualifying rounds until Saturday, weather conditions may be such that they will not have an opportunity of showing their real form.

FIGHT PICTURES MAKE A HIT

Few Clean Blows and Much Pulling and Hauling Mark the Exhibit.

Brooklyn, July 30.—The first public exhibition of the moving pictures showing the Jeffries-Johnson fight was given before a good sized audience at the Crescent Theatre last week by the American Vitaphone Company. The pictures themselves are good, and the crowd which occupied the house enjoying the scenes attending the big event at Reno on the Fourth of July, and the battle itself, as well as though they were present on the occasion.

The showing that the two fighters made as the pictures screen them, has been described before. Those who saw the films satisfied themselves that the battle was not as terrible as it was pictured, while the knockout that Jeffries received was not nearly the knockout that a great many people expected. The ex-champion was the victor. After his first knockout, Jeffries seemed to have lost his bearings, and had it not been for the interference of his seconds and others, it is probable that he could have arisen again. There was no clean knockout scored like what the fight fans like to see, and Jeffries was not as terribly beaten as he was means. At the rate the pair of big fighters were travelling, those who saw the pictures were of the opinion that either one of the fighters could have easily gone ten more rounds in the style of mulling that they were furnished. The pictures were very clean punches scored, not much clever stuff, variety to speak of for champions of that variety: while shoving and pushing and clinching about, through the battle. The pictures of the event, however, are worth while going to see.

SERIES OF FOUR LOST BY DANVILLE

By Winning Double Header Roanoke Makes Clean Sweep.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Roanoke, Va., July 30.—Roanoke landed both games of a double-header with Danville this afternoon, winning the first by the score of 2 to 0, after a hard fight, and the second in a walk, by the score of 9 to 1.

In the eighth inning of the first game Pender aroused the ire of the Bugs by his awfully close decision in calling Powell safe at home, and Griffin's kick was so strenuous that Pender not only ordered him to leave the grounds, but called on the police to lend assistance. In the ninth inning the visitors were blanked, so that the one run secured by the Tigers would have won the game anyhow.

In the second contest, Griffin being related to the visitors, were hopelessly handicapped, presenting line-up, and evidently playing with very little heart. The result of the double-header gave the locals the entire series of four, and advanced them a stride in the chase after the leaders.
